The Tragic Story of Haley Larson: Vaccinating the Most Fragile Among Us

Haley Larson, born with a neurological disorder, was just 10 months old when she died. According to her mother, childhood vaccines played a major role in her worsening condition and eventual death.

Haley Larson was born with hydrocephalus, a neurological disorder caused by the buildup of cerebrospinal fluid in the brain. She was just 10 months old when she died.

According to her mother Jane Larson, childhood vaccines — received at the normal two-, four- and six-month intervals — contributed to Haley's worsening condition and eventual death.

Jane spoke with Polly Tommey, CHD.TV programming manager, on Children's Health Defense's (CHD) "Vax-Unvax" bus tour during its stop in Troy, Michigan, on Sept. 8.

Jane, a physical therapist, discovered during an ultrasound when she was 20 weeks pregnant that her unborn baby's brain was not developing normally. The doctors diagnosed hydrocephalus.

"We knew there were going to be challenges, but we embraced that," Jane said. "And I am a physical therapist so I thought, 'Great, I can put my skills to work caring for my daughter.'"

Jane, who admitted to being "highly vaccinated," said she did not receive any maternal vaccines until after the fetal diagnosis at 20 weeks. At that point, they gave her the "recommended" flu shot, the Tdap (tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis) vaccine, and RhoGAM shot (for Rh-negative mothers).

After Haley was born, Jane said they found blood clots in her placenta. Noting that the Tdap vaccine contains aluminum "and aluminum does cause blood clotting," she said, "I'm certain it didn't help."

Jane was induced two weeks early, so Haley technically was not born prematurely. "She actually came out fine," Jane said. "She was breathing on her own and passed all the tests."

Haley was taken to the neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) and kept under observation. Under clear instructions from Jane, Haley did not receive the hepatitis B vaccine, but she's unsure whether she received the "vitamin K" shot because Haley "was swept out of the room."

After several days in the NICU, Jane took her baby home. A few days later she brought Haley in for a weight check and was told the baby was not growing properly.

The hospital readmitted Haley and soon after "they found that she was having seizures," Jane said, and they gave her "a bolus [large] dose of anti-seizure medication."

Within hours, part of Haley's bowel died. "She stopped breathing," Jane said. "She went into a code blue. They had to come and resuscitate her."

After doing tests, doctors performed emergency surgery to remove the non-functional portion of her bowel.

Jane showed Polly a photograph of Haley on a ventilator at 1 week old. Jane recalled that she stayed on the ventilator for a week, received IV nutrition and was on IV antibiotics for more than six weeks.

At 2 months old, Haley was still in the NICU when the hospital recommended her scheduled childhood vaccinations. These included:

- Pediarix, comprised of DTP, hepatitis B, and polio vaccines.
- Hib, for Haemophilus influenzae type b.
- Prevnar 13, to protect against 13 types of pneumococcal bacteria.

"That's 19 different illnesses that they decided to vaccinate her for," Jane said. "And when you add those up, that's … 1,200 micrograms of aluminum."

"OK, so let's understand this everybody," Polly said. "So this baby is in NICU. NICU means that they're very seriously sick. That's why they're there."

Jane said she didn't know how those vaccines affected Haley with so much going on, including six surgeries.

"And then we were in and out of the hospital for more surgeries … and she had to be readmitted for an infection in one of her incision sites, [after which she] had two brain surgeries," Jane recounted.

After Haley had been home for four days, it was time for her 4-month checkup. Even though Jane was skeptical of vaccines and had delayed them for her older children, she gave into the doctor's recommendation and got the round of 4-month vaccines, "the same ones that she just got before." Jane said.

"So, 240 times the acceptable amount of aluminum for her age," Jane said. "And they decide to do that again."

For the next two months, Haley was doing well at home and "trying to gain weight" Jane said, while "we're trying to control seizures."

"And then she has her 6-month shots," Jane said. "And I resisted, I didn't want to give her these. My mama's gut said, 'She is fighting so much. She is fighting for her life.' … It doesn't make sense."

"I just don't understand," Polly said. "And people, viewers listening, please help us understand why they gave this baby girl, who was clearly very sick, so many shots."

"This is the University of Michigan," Jane said. "This is not some Podunk hospital," adding that if a parent were to poison their child like that, "they're going to call child protective services … because your child is going to be sick from that. And yet this is what they do to sick children."

Within 24 hours, Haley was back in the emergency room and was put on a feeding tube. Jane learned that Haley had developed a condition called pyloric stenosis, "which means your stomach doesn't let the food continue on," Jane said.

Before the diagnosis, however, Haley had been spitting up the food and re-breathing it into her lungs, which led to another surgery to move the gastric tube below the area of blockage.

"This was not something that she had had in the previous six months," Jane said. "Basically, she wasn't able to take the nutrition that she needed."

"And so we transferred to hospice comfort care, and she lived for about another four months before she passed away," Jane said.

Reflecting on the doctor's choice to give her vaccines, Jane said:

> "She was the most fragile of the fragile. She was the weakest of the weak. She was the most vulnerable of the vulnerable. And I know there were things that they gave her that were maybe a little bit harmful, but they served a purpose that made sense.
> "These [vaccines] don't make sense. These were not things that she was at risk of. And so I feel like they poisoned her. … They didn't make accommodations for her."

Jane made the connection between Haley's diagnosis of pyloric stenosis and the vaccines after joining a Yahoo group of parents with children suffering from the same condition.

"And the interesting thing was, a lot of these were healthy kids that developed it right after their 6-month shots," Jane said. "So that was the tip-off to me that this was not just one of her usual struggles. This was something that was induced."

Jane recommended that parents "pray about everything" and, recalling a couple of Biblical passages, "trust God above man" and "do not cooperate with evil," she said.

"Every time we engage with this industry, we are cooperating with evil. I have made my best effort to remove myself from that industry completely," Jane said.

Despite the tragic story, Haley remained the bright spot throughout all of her ordeals. "Everybody loved her in the hospital," Jane said. "Everybody that knew her received love. She was just a total joy to have in my life."

About the vaccines Haley received

The package insert for Pediarix warns against severe allergic reactions, encephalopathy (coma, decreased level of consciousness, prolonged seizures) and progressive neurologic disorders (infantile spasms, uncontrolled epilepsy or progressive encephalopathy).

The insert also references adverse reactions to "prior pertussis vaccination," including 105°F fever, collapse or shock-like state (hypotonic-hyporesponsive episode), persistent inconsolable crying lasting more than three hours and seizures.

Follow-up for serious adverse events for Pediarix lasted only 30 days, according to the insert, with 1% of subjects reporting serious events such as pyrexia, gastroenteritis, bronchiolitis and "culture-negative clinical sepsis." Five deaths were reported among 14 clinical trials with a total of 8,088 recipients.

In a U.S. safety study where subjects received the Hib and pneumococcal vaccines alongside Pediarix, 3% of subjects developed chronic illnesses such as asthma, diabetes mellitus and chronic neutropenia.

In post-marketing reports for Pediarix, the insert lists the following adverse reactions: cyanosis, diarrhea, vomiting, upper respiratory tract infection, abnormal liver function tests, encephalitis, hypotonia, somnolence, syncope, insomnia, unusual crying, screaming, apnea, dyspnea (shortness of breath), angioedema, erythema, rash, urticaria (hives), pallor and petechiae.

The package insert for the HIBERIX Hib vaccine (not confirmed as the exact brand Haley received but characteristic of the class of vaccines) reports allergic reactions including anaphylactic and anaphylactoid reactions, angioedema, convulsions, hypotonic-hyporesponsive episodes, somnolence, syncope, vasovagal responses, apnea, rash and urticaria.

The package insert for Prevnar 13 warns against using the vaccine for those born prematurely, which could cause apnea. It warns that the vaccine could cause severe allergic reactions such as anaphylaxis and that individuals with "altered immunocompetence could have reduced antibody responses" to the vaccine.

The insert reports serious adverse events for as many as 8.2% of recipients over 13 clinical trials, which included bronchiolitis, gastroenteritis and pneumonia, as well as four sudden infant deaths (SIDS) — about .1%.

This makes me furious, and at the same time, heartsick, that this beautiful baby and her parents had to go through all of this, unnecessarily. Are the doctors greedy (kickbacks?), ignorant, or they just go along with the CDC's recommendations, no matter what? In my opinion, no child needs these vaccines, and would be much healthier without them.

I agree, no shots are needed. I think the doctors do get kickbacks on medication. They are all drug dealers maing us sick so we eep them rich.

They do get kickbacks, whether they want them or not.

They're extremely indoctrinated. That's what's really behind the shots for infants.

People have been indoctrinated into doing what government and their doctors tell them to do. I guess I'm a rebel; I don't always follow my doctor's advice when I believe they're wrong, and I rarely trust what government says, especially the FDA and CDC!

I'm pretty sure the past few years have taught many about how easily the institutions lie to us. Those videos where dozens of local news programs are shown speaking from the exact same script really blew the cobwebs from my eyes.

I got the Polio vaccine at 6 and before I turned 7, I had polio. Doctors, night braces, one leg shorter than the other, exercises, therapy, and more. Liquid medicine too. Then surgery at 12. Shorter entire side than the other. Lots of problems growing up. Now problems with aging. Lower back pain, a crooked spine b/c my entire body is lopsided. The left leg has no calf, and the toes grew crooked (to the left) and that makes my foot painful... My hearing was affected and now b/c it is a progressive hearing loss, almost 90% of my hearing is gone...It affected my vision (2 cataracts) so far, my Equiilium goes out, and my balance is terrible...
WHY did they give that child a polio vaccine? I thought it was eradicated. I got my shot in 1954...
My condolences to the parents/family or that baby... A terrible tragedy..

According to Dr. Tess Lowry, no baby should ever have a vaccine. The more I learn, the more I agree with her.

Parents please understand that pediatricians are not educated in vaccinology. They get some info that is driven by the pharma agenda and they parrot it. Allowing your child to get shots, is like driving drunk with them in the car, because you are taking a great risk for their future health. You have at your disposal the means to discover the truth despite censorship, there are still ways to read the right books and find balanced podcasts. Watch the series on the opiod epidemic with Matthew Broderick, and the MO of purdue pharma, and realize the same MO is being used on you. Ignorance at this point is no excuse.

This sick care system do not want you well. There is no money in us being well. I will never go back to these pill pushers ever again. We are just a wallet to them. Stop going and they will be forced to change. God gave us a perfect body with an immune system to get stronger day by day. This a delivery system to make us ill and sickly, which means lots of money and poisonous pills. What have they cured? I believe they create the illnesses and have the treatments awaiting for us. Do not comply!

"Parents please understand that pediatricians are not educated in vaccinology. "

Neither are these incompetents trained in the deadly effects of masking children, which is a Human Extinction Event, whereas vaccines are sporadic death promoters...

"CHILDREN ARE NOT LITTLE ADULTS

Children have a dynamic physiology that is not only turned up to "high" because of growth demands, but also vulnerable to damage during differentiation and maturation of organs and systems.

Their needs for energy, water and oxygen are higher, because they go through an intense anabolic process.

It seems that it's become a full-time job just protecting your children from the government -- the government education system -- and the illness care system. We now know so much more about all of these vaccines that they flood infants' immune systems with that there's not excuse for all of this torture of the most vulnerable among us. My good friend's granddaughter had a baby in December 2022, and was able to refuse the vaccines in the hospital. In January, as his well-baby checkup, she was coerced into giving him 1 MMR and 1 polio. But, she' hesitant about taking him to the pediatrician again -- he's well, happy and healthy. She's afraid if she declines further vaccinations they will call child protective services on her.
My friend's granddaughter is a day care worker taking care of infants, many of whom are from foster families who are caring for drug babies. She comments to my friend that she doesn't understand why they often give these babies back to their druggie mothers, but threaten loving, caring mothers with loss of their child if they refuse these horrible vaccines that have terrible consequences. She's not sure what to do other than get an attorney, and file a religious exemption (she's filled out the paperwork).

I often tell people that our government is our worst enemy. It's a full-time job trying to keep oneself and family members safe from the horrors of the government-run medical system.

This case was obviously a shit show from the beginning. Any parent who allows their sick child to receive so many vaccines in the first few months of life is guilty of child abuse. The medical establishment that allowed this is complicit and guilty of child abuse. It breaks my heart to know this poor baby had no choice to die by poisoning like this. What an absolutely horrible, appalling story. And I'm sure it's not the only one like this. This was a deliberate poisoning of an infant by the medical establishment. How much money did they make off of this poor child? They all need to be held accountable!!

Healthy pregnant animals are NOT given vaccines. Why are humans?

There are entities that hate us and want to get rid of us. Read "The Georiga Guidestones". They destroyed it at the beginning of "Covid". It was up 40 yrs, one generation. Funny that they blew it up. We had 40 yrs. to read it. It was no longer needed. Wake up before it is too late. I also recommend "Watch the water" with Dr. Ardis. Truth in Movies.

Utterly infuriating! Who in the he'll gets shots while pregnant??? If you're not supposed to eat fish because if mercury poisoning while pregnant why get a shot??!!@

Think people think. As a mother of 5 this is one thing that I feel very very guilty for, childhood shots. Thankfully my kids are healthy. My pediatrician would ask me to get up to speed on their shots when they were in for a sick visit. Thank God I had the smarts to hold off when they were feeling better , which helped.

We are not in need of all of this toxicity!!

I feel heartsick, teary eyed, and so disgusted (at our medical policies) when I heard this story. It's as if they gave Haley the exact opposite to what she really needed, and ultimately took her life. I'm sure these people are not consciously evil and barbaric - they are so misguided and limited by our corrupt medical system that they have no idea what they are really doing to our children….where is the common sense in this? I'm so sorry Jane…

Parents are put in an intolerable situation as are pregnant women, they will do anything to protect their child. The doctors know they hold the power and use it ruthlessly to coerce vaccination.

No one should ever take vaccines. Kari Mullis did an interview, the inventor of the PCR test, told it all and died shortly after is interview. I have a feeling he was ousted.

A friend of mine was a NICU nurse for years. She says the nurses used to administer the recommended vaccines into the trash or a towel. If they didn't the babies would likely die.
